MAGICAL Terengganu

Terengganu which overlooks the South China Sea on the east coast of Peninsular Malaysia is a charming holiday destination. Its 244 km coastline is endowed with truly breathtaking beaches of white sand, washed by clear, warm waters. Occupying 12,955 sq km with a population of over a million, it is bordered by the state of Kelantan in the north and Pahang in the south. The capital town is Kuala Terengganu.

Terengganu is a state with strong Malay culture and traditional pastimes such as kite flying, top spinning and batik printing can still be seen today. Its people lead a moderate, peaceful lifestyle in charming coastal towns and rustic villages. The traditional activity of the state is fishing.

There are numerous ways to enjoy yourself in this laid-back state. Take your pick from island hopping, snorkelling in crystal clear waters or just idling the day under the sun. Go boating on a serene lake or shopping at the local market. Top it up with an opportunity to watch turtles lumber ashore to lay their eggs.

Come and experience the treasures of Terengganu.

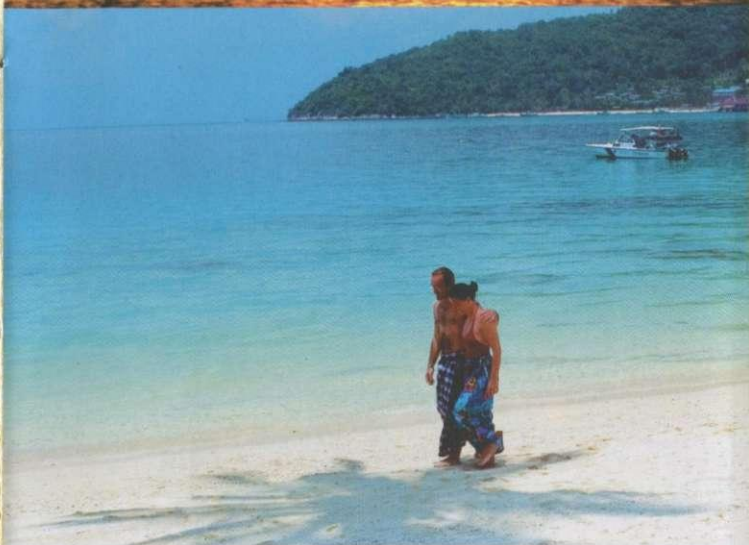

PRISTINE Islands & Beaches

The long stretches of the Terengganu coastline, extending from Besut in the north to Kemaman in the south, is endowed with numerous long, white sandy beaches nestling in pristine tranquillity in rocky bays and secluded palm-fringed coves. Washed by the warm waters of the South China Sea, its beaches proclaim nature's wonderful alchemy of fine powdery white and gold sands. The beaches are magnificently wide, often times sloping gradually into the sea.

Terengganu's offshore islands, with their crystal clear waters and vibrant underwater world, is part of a marine park. Colourful, mature coral gardens and several shipwrecks in these waters offer some of the best dive sites in the region. With the mesmerising vastness of the sea, cool breezes and breathtaking sunsets, the islands are nothing short of a tropical paradise.

*Pulau Perhentian - An idyllic haven of unspoilt sandy beaches
and lush greenery*

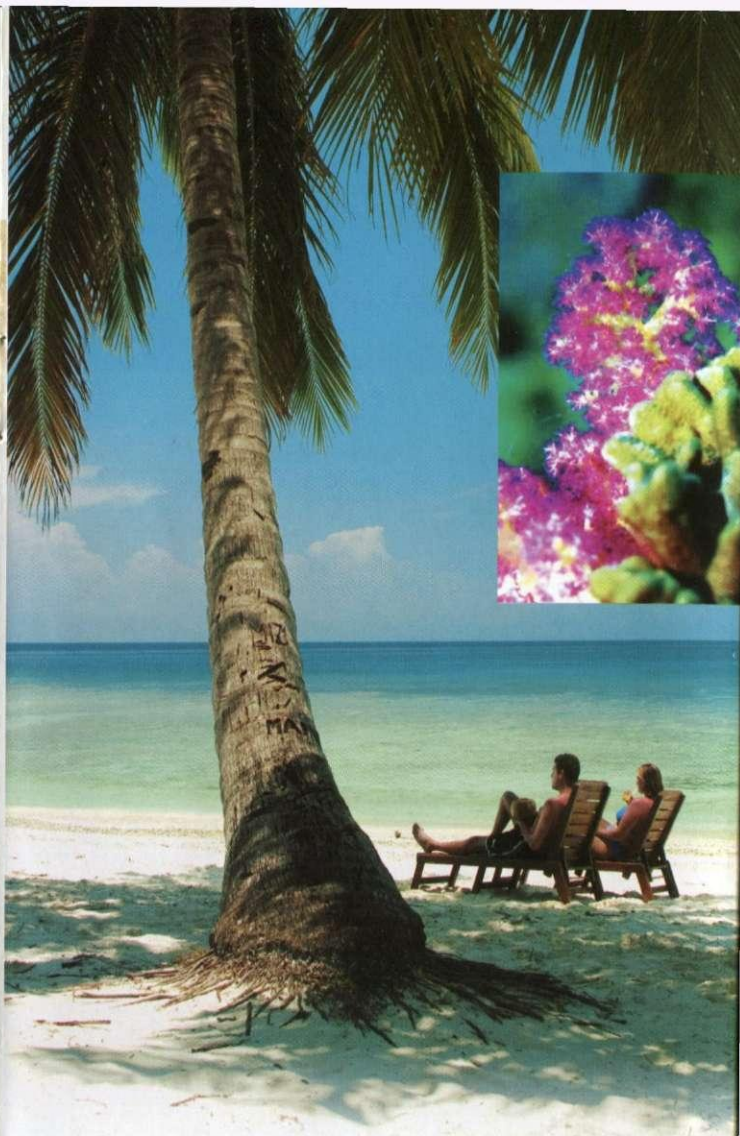

Pulau Redang, the most developed of the islands, is accessible both by air and sea. Known particularly for its fine white sand and numerous diving spots, it boasts two large resorts and several smaller chalet properties, all situated along the coast. Explore its 31 dive sites, participate in beach sports and dance the night away at a beach party along Pasir Panjang. Indulge in a spa treatment and enjoy a sumptuous barbecue of fresh seafood.

The Marine Park at Pulau Pinang off Redang is popular amongst snorkelling enthusiasts because of its diverse coral gardens and marine wonderland. The teeming fish life provides a burst of colour in the turquoise sea. Water clarity is so good that schools of parrotfish can be seen even at a distance from the jetty. Children enjoy snorkelling here, amidst fish like those found in a popular animated movie. Further away, a sunken Chinese ship protruding above sea level beckons divers to explore further.

The islands of Perhentian Besar and Kecil also offer amazing snorkelling spots in their boulder encrusted bays. The aquamarine waters with excellent visibility and spectacular underwater reefs make Perhentian the preferred choice of veteran divers. Plunge in and experience the thrill of seeing manta rays, reef sharks and barracudas. Closer to shore, there's the option of watching turtles lay eggs at Three Coves Bay, feeding the vibrant coloured fish or just sitting back and enjoying the sun and breeze.

Pulau Lang Tengah*

For a more secluded getaway, the smaller island of Lang Tengah is ideal. Its light green waters are crystal clear and fish swim surprisingly close to the shore, unperturbed by human presence. Visibility is so good that the seabed can be seen from the boat, along with inconspicuous stonefish and sea cucumbers. Look out for the blue corals found in these waters, just 40 metres from the shore.

Between the islands of Pulau Perhentian and Pulau Susu Dara are some spectacular dive sites. Sightings of the whale shark, the largest fish in the world, are common. Found close to the equator, whale sharks are harmless to people and totally indifferent to divers.

The emerald waters around Pulau Rhu have superb coral formations offering some amazing sights. The rich pageantry of its marine life has made the island popular amongst students and budget travellers.

Pulau Bidong has quiet waters and several secluded spots for swimming, boating and snorkelling. A Vietnamese memorial here is dedicated to the refugees who resided on the island. The Institute of Oceanography under KUSTEM also has a station here undertaking the study, conservation and preservation of South China Sea ecosystems. Visitors to the island are advised to arrange for a guided tour.

Located just beside Pulau Kapas, Pulau Gemia or Gem Island offers another getaway to stunning beaches, crystal clear water, beautiful corals and fascinating marine life. The steep and densely forested hinterland surrounding the beaches is deliberately left undisturbed to preserve wildlife.

As a result the island is able to retain its peaceful and tranquil atmosphere. Sea eagles, reef herons, tern and also the endangered giant leatherback turtles are said to nest on this island every year. Chalets are built stretching along the rocky shoreline. The rugged hill terrain is conducive for rock climbing and is ideal for birdwatching.

The well-sheltered bay at Pulau Tenggol is home to intact and mature coral gardens, making it a delight for reef lovers. Being the farthest island from the mainland, the nutrient rich waters here are home to a kaleidoscope of colourful corals and marine life, producing dramatic visual effects underwater.

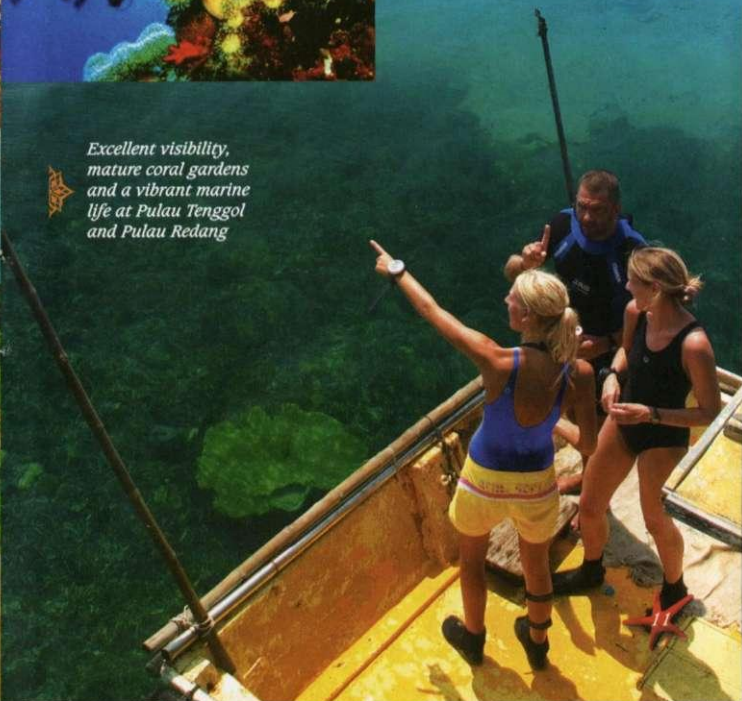

Pantai Batu Buruk is the main beach park in downtown Kuala Terengganu. Equipped with a playground, park benches and gazebos, it is a popular place for locals to meet and dine, with many food stalls catering to varied tastes.

An absolutely enchanting place along the coast is Pantai Penarik in Setiu. Sandwiched between the Penarik River and the South China Sea, the traditional wooden homes of fishermen lie scattered along the palm-fringed shores. An interesting sight is fishing boats returning to shore with their daily catch. Enjoy a fresh seafood meal in the evening at one of the beachside stalls. With its gently sloping sand and fairly shallow, sparkling waters, Pantai Penarik makes a perfect setting for beach lovers to enjoy a day of uninterrupted bliss.

Excellent visibility, mature coral gardens and a vibrant marine life at Pulau Tenggol and Pulau Redang

Another charming and secluded beach area is around Bukit Keluang. Its quiet coves and pristine beach is flanked by the coastal hill, which holds several small explorable caves. This beach park is an ideal site for swimming, snorkelling, windsurfing and family picnics.

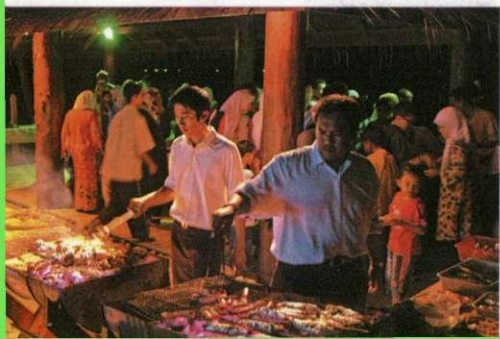

Pantai Tanjung Jara is open to the powerful waves from the South China Sea creating fascinating sand dunes. Long, wide stretches of golden sand sloping gently into the greenish-blue waters are prominent. The steady winds and reasonably dramatic surf make it an excellent location for windsurfing, boating and sailing, while the wide, open waters permit kayaking, snorkelling, deep-sea fishing and diving.

For accommodation, choose from spacious suites and cottages in a lush tropical setting amidst a sprawling 17-hectare beach that faces the South China Sea. Guests can enjoy a range of in-house activities or opt for river boat cruises and highly informative jungle treks, guided by local naturalists.

Pantai Marang with its picturesque fishing village and spectacular sunrise is a favourite with photographers.

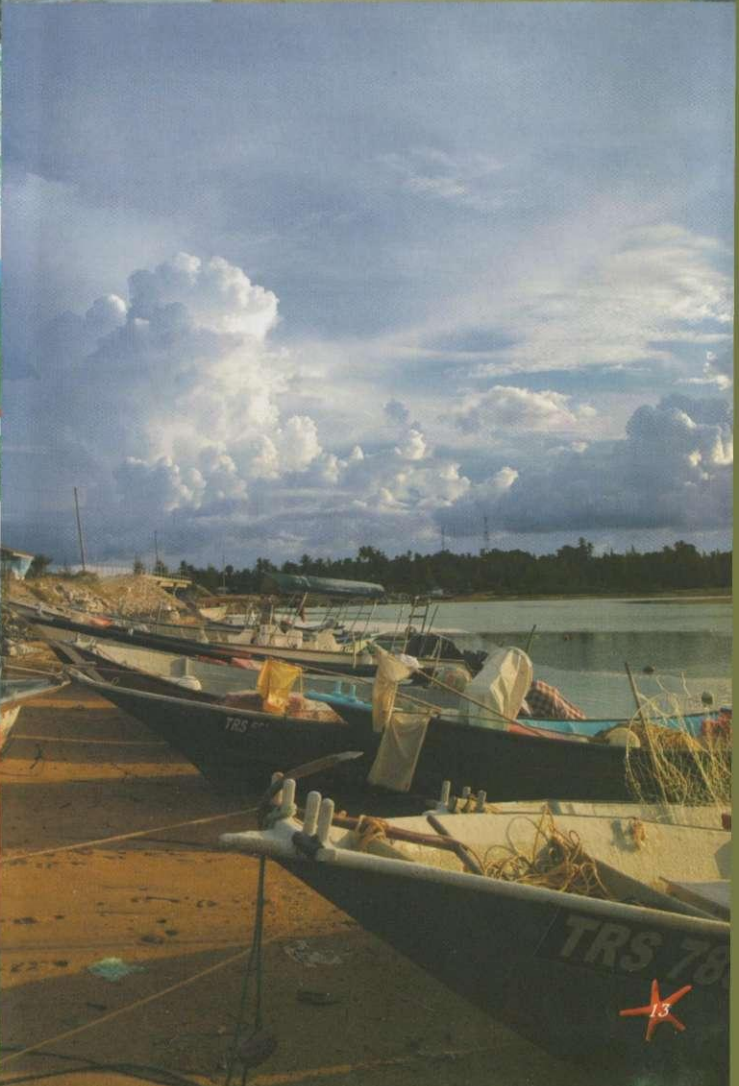

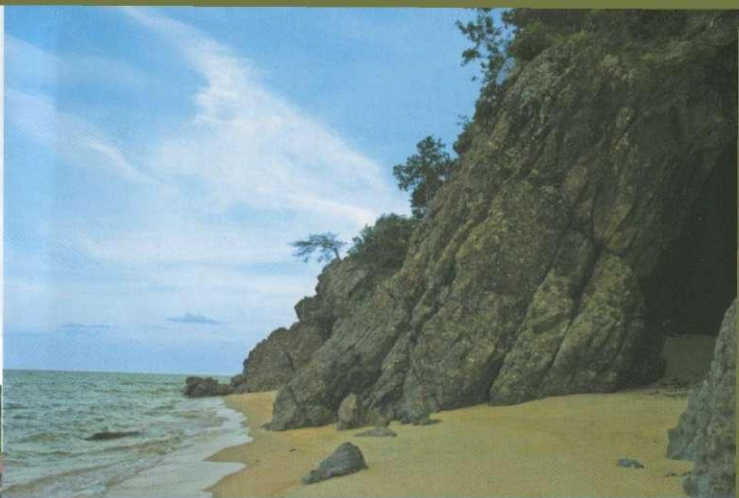

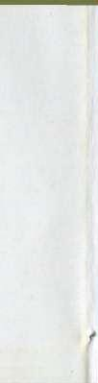

Rantau Abang The Fisheries Department runs a turtle hatchery here to protect this endangered species. The long casuarinas-lined beach is suitable for all kinds of beach activities such as beach volleyball, picnic, kite flying and camping.

The stretch of beaches along southern Terengganu around the town of Kemasik offers great tranquillity. Kemasik town runs parallel to the seashore and has a beachfront that is lined with numerous coconut trees. In fact, no trip here would be complete without stopping to savour coconut water from one of the many roadside vendors. The unique beach straddles the banks of the estuary, giving it a very individual character. During low tide, you can observe the lifestyle of quaint fishing villages nestling precariously along the river coastline.

Local tour agents and resort operators will be of assistance in arranging activities such as jungle trekking, camping, sport-fishing, mountain biking, boat rafting, canoeing, cave exploration and night safaris.

An interesting feature of Terengganu's forest reserves are the multi-tiered waterfalls. Nestled in a 130-million-year-old jungle, the Chemerong Waterfall is a spectacular sight with four cascading rapids, the highest of which falls 600 m. Just 15 km away is the 1,300-year-old Chengal Tree, the biggest tree in the world.

The oldest chengal tree in the world

The Lata Tembakah Waterfall in the district of Besut, is situated amidst a thickly wooded tropical rainforest. The forest canopy and the cool air produced by the waterfall make it a pleasant relaxation spot. A visit to the waterfall requires a two km trek that is rewarded with a stunning view of its cascades and the surrounding greenery.

The Bewah and Taat Caves at the southern end of Kenyir Lake can be reached by speedboat from the Gawi Jetty. Gua Bewah is the biggest of the known caves with an entrance that is 40 m above lake level. The flight of steps from the floating jetty leads to a large cave chamber within which lie archaeological pits and thriving cave fauna.

Gua Taat is on the opposite hill. Though smaller in size, it contains interesting stalagmites formations. Archaeological finds here include tools and pottery from the Hoabinhian period (14,000-10,000 years ago).

Adventure seekers can enjoy a thrilling mountaineering experience at the 1,376 m Gunung Gagau. The base camp provides full facilities and prior arrangements are required for a guide. Other challenging activities here include rock climbing and mountain biking.

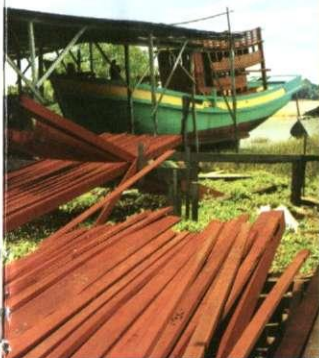

Rivers and their tributaries are the lifeblood of Terengganu with early dwellings initially established on riverbanks.

The quaint village along Marang River displays the traditional lifestyles of the locals amidst a flourishing fishing industry. River cruises pass through mangrove swamps where animals like monitor lizards and otters can be seen. There are also several cottage industries along the streams producing local items like palm sugar and hand-woven baskets.

Terengganu is a staging point for boat services to the neighbouring islands. At one point, the river runs parallel to the town's main Chinese village, Kampung Cina.

A cruise along the estuary of the Terengganu River, takes passengers on a short journey to the Seberang Takir Village, known for its cottage industries producing salted fish and the famous Keropok Lekor, or fish crackers. It also offers a breathtaking view of the South China Sea.

A little further at Pulau Duyong, traditional boat builders can be seen busy at work. Some undertake repairs while others create beautifully handcrafted vessels.

One of the larger rivers in Terengganu, Sungai Dungun pulsates with activities. A cruise downstream offers a picturesque view of the area where rivers converge. Kampung Pasir Raja is a remote traditional village here with magnificent flora and fauna, a waterfall, meandering streams and rapids for an adventure-filled holiday.

TIMELESS Traditions

The rich culture of Terengganu is particularly evident in the graceful dance movements and hypnotising music of the state.

The Ulit Mayang is considered a cultural legacy of Terengganu. This mellow dance form which resembles a lullaby is commonly performed by the coastal Malay communities. Performed at night, 10 to 15 dancers form a circle while a head dancer or Adi sings poetic lyrics to invoke the blessings of a mythical being.

Tarian Balai is a dance associated with the worship of the rice or padi spirit. It is performed by the village damsels in Terengganu and their movements replicate the life of the padi planters. A colourful umbrella is positioned in the middle of the stage and the girls dance around the umbrella, which represents the padi spirit. During the dance, farming tools are brought along such as hoe, winnowing material, farmer's hat and others. The dance is also accompanied by singing.

With the use of a small drum producing an infectious beat, the Rodat musicians perform love songs alongside colourfully attired male and female singing dancers.

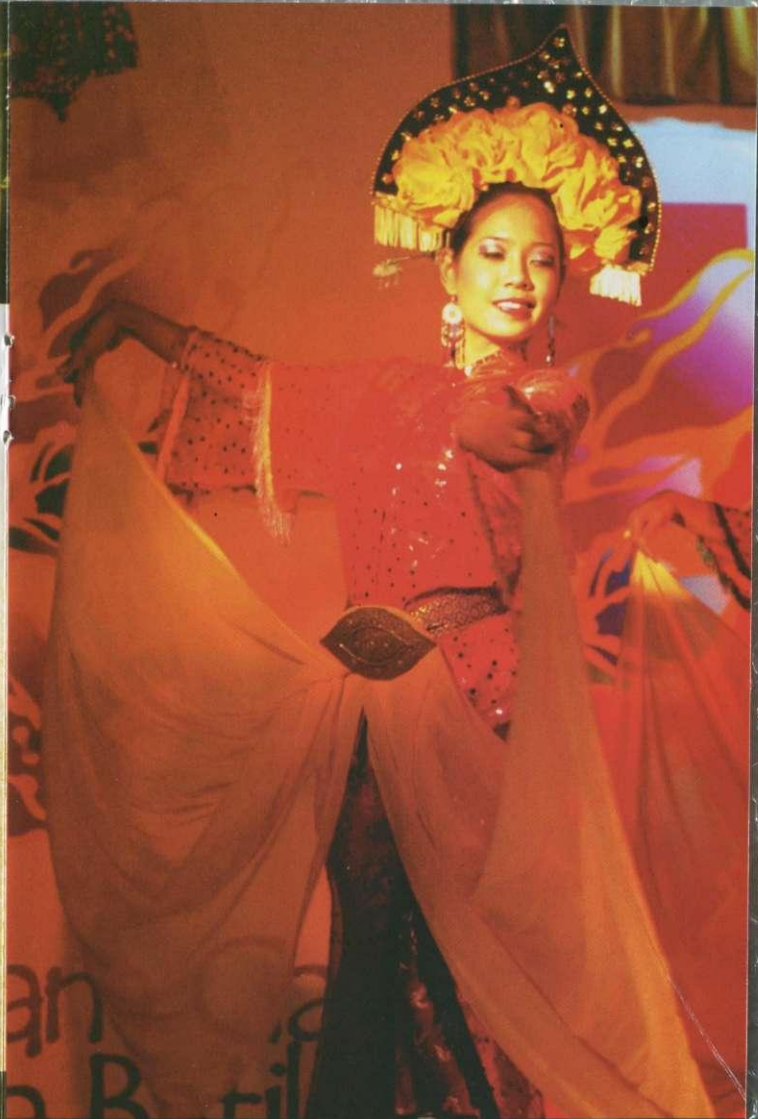

Performed by women seated in rows accompanied by the beatings of kompang and gong drums, the Dikir Puteri makes an entertaining and enjoyable show. It starts with a slow rhythmic chant, which rapidly accelerates to reach a crescendo.

The people of Terengganu are experts in creating colourful batik prints on either silk or cotton textiles. Many of the designs reflect nature-based motifs such as floral prints and marine life. However, more contemporary designs are being created today, to elevate batik to high exacting standards comparable to exclusive overseas products. GLORIOUS *P*ast

The historical sites in Kuala Terengganu allow visitors the opportunity to recapture Terengganu's glorious past. Each place has a unique and interesting story to tell.

The impressive Terengganu State Museum Complex on Jalan Losong consists of four main blocks, an adjacent Maritime Museum and five traditional houses. Set amidst beautifully landscaped gardens, a small waterfall and ponds with koi fish, this is the largest museum complex in Southeast Asia. It offers a glimpse into the rich history of the state religion, royalty, culture and economy.

The artefacts on Bukit Puteri date back to 1831 when the ruling Sultan made it a fortress to ward off invading enemies. The large bell there was originally used to warn of impending attacks and later, it was used to signal the breaking of fast during the Muslim holy month of Ramadan.

Batu Bersurat or Inscribed Stone, dating back to 1303 and discovered in 1887, marks the significance of Islam in Terengganu. The hand inscriptions using the Jawi script declare Islam as the official religion. The original stone is kept at the State Museum while a replica stands in Kuala Terengganu's main town circle.

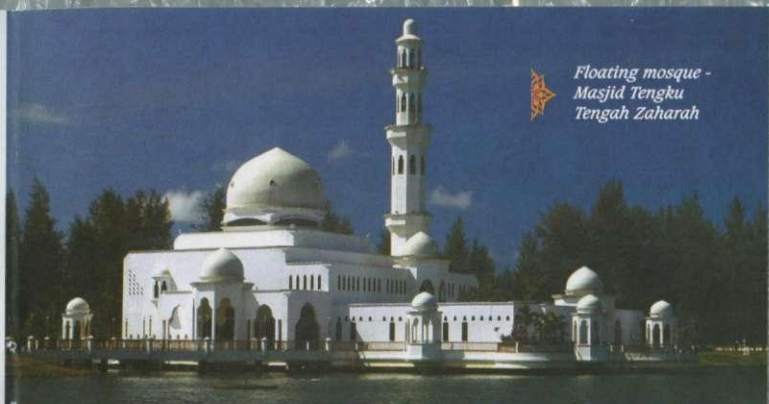

Masjid Tengku Tengah Zaharah, dubbed as the 'Floating Mosque' lies 4.5 km away from Kuala Terengganu, attesting to the blending of religion and culture in the local life. The unique combination of modern and Moorish architecture coupled with its 'floating' illusion makes the mosque a sight to behold, particularly when seen at night.

By the 18th century, Terengganu was an established commercial centre and Chinese junks that plied the trade route brought in many settlers. The preserved entrance to Kampung Cina is a richly decorated archway with protective dragons. Restoration of the elegant homes in this district highlight the cement embossed wall patterns, and long wooden shutter windows.

The royal palace, Istana Maziah and its compound overlook the lively Kuala Terengganu Waterfront. With a hint of French architecture, this palace was the official home of the previous Sultan. It is currently only used for royal ceremonies and state receptions.
